Royal British Marines Guests of American Marines at Christmas Dinner at Barracks at Washington, D. C.

View of Mess Hall During Dinner

Through an invitation extended in the following letter, the Royal British Marines attached to the British Delegation attending the Armament Conference in Washington were guests for Christmas dinner at the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C.

December 23, 1921.

MY DEAR SIR MAURICE:

Major Vogel, the commanding officer of the Marine Barracks, Eighth and H Streets, southeast, this city, has asked me to extend through you to the Royal Marines attached to the British Delegation a cordial invitation to take Christmas dinner at the Marine Barracks with his men. The dinner hour is high noon on Sunday, December 25.

Our men would be delighted to have their brothers in arms with them on that occasion, and I hope that you can make the necessary arrangements to permit them to accept the invitation.

With best wishes for the holiday season, I am,
Very sincerely yours,

JOHN A. LEJUNE,
Major General Commandant.

Sir Maurice Hankey,
Franklin Square Hotel,
Washington, D. C.

When these Royal Marines sat at dinner with American Marines it brought together two branches of service of England and the United States that have run on practically the same course since the inception of both late in the eighteenth century.

The duties of the Royal Marine are in every way practically the same as the duties of our own Sea-soldier, and in England, as in this country, he is rated as belonging to the best branch of service.

The menu of the dinner which was prepared under the direction of Mess Steward Charles F. Hirsch, by First Cook Charles P. Hungler, Second Cook William H. Lape, Third Cook Charles B. McKeag, and Fourth Cook Charles D. Stanton is as follows:

| | | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------|-----------------|------------|

Do You Know

That the Cunard Liner Acquitania on a recent voyage, New York to Southampton, maintained a speed of 26.66 knots per hour?

That plans have been put forward to raise the Red Cross liner Stephano which now lies off Nantucket Lightship in 29 fathoms of water? She was torpedoed on October 6, 1916, by the German Submarine U-53.

That ships of four nations carried 89 per cent of the approximate 11,600,000 tons of cargo which went through the Panama Canal during the fiscal year ended June 30, and that American vessels carried 5,153,000 tons of this amount? British, Japanese, and Norwegian ships, respectively, were next in amount of tonnage.

That 220 American craft of 122,397 tons were lost through foundering, strandings, collisions or other causes during the twelve months ending June 30?

That Charleston, S. C., has recently voted $2,500,000 bond issue for port development?

That more than 1,000 of the Shipping Board's steel vessels are now reported to be idle?

That, under the present ruling exchange price of the mark, a German sea captain gets $17 per month in comparison with the $370 received by a captain in American merchant service?

That there are approximately 120,000 hairs to the average scalp?

That serum obtained from animals inoculated with the venom of a poisonous snake is an absolute antidote to the poison of the same kind of snake?

That Naval and Marine aircraft flew a total mileage of 2,511,055 during the last fiscal year?

That wireless communication between land and aircraft has been developed during the past year to such an extent that it is now possible to keep constant communication between aircraft and land stations?

That the air forces of the two United States fleets are now composed of scouting, spotting, combat, torpedo and bombing planes, and kite balloons?

That Marine Corps aviators made 3,364 airplane flights totaling 4,681 hours, or 300,285 miles during the year?

That Australia is larger in area than the United States and contains less people than the City of New York.

BATTLE OF JUTLAND TO BE SHOWN AT M. B., WASHINGTON

Through the courtesy of Major J. W. O'Mahoney of the Educational Films Corporation of New York City, the men of the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., will have the pleasure of viewing at the Auditorium of the barracks, on January 9, 1922, at 8 P. M., the authenticated screen visualization of the world's greatest sea fight, the Battle of Jutland.

This film is based on information supplied by Major General Sir George Aston, K. C. B., British Royal Marines. This will be the second showing of this film outside of New York City. Naval officers on duty in Washington and officers attending the Army War College will be the guests of the officers and enlisted men of this barracks for this show.

WELCOME 1922

Here's to you Nineteen-twenty-two!
We've waited for you long,
And we are glad to welcome you
In joyousness and song.

You're starting on a 12 months' cruise,
Here's hoping it's serene,
And that this toast you'll not refuse
From each U. S. Marine:

"We wish you every happiness
And good luck by the peck."
(And that's the sentiment, I guess, Of every Leatherneck.)

Perhaps disarmament proceedings will eventually succeed in reducing the strength of the Marine Corps. But, be our numbers few or many, no disarmament will succeed in reducing our esprit de corps.

Apparently the ex-kaiser is still looking for trouble. Rumors from Doorn say that he intends to get married again soon.

For Rent—Furnished room to gentleman

Swab—O!

The recruits at Parris Island were firing their first course. In spite of every encouragement from the sergeant who was coaching on the firing line, Private Smith was missing the target with every round.

At last, in despair, the sergeant told him to go and shoot himself. Smith disappeared.
A few seconds later there was a report.
Hurryy in the direction the sergeant shouted:

"Are you there, Smith?"
"Yes, sergeant," came the reply—"I've missed again."

How Big Was It?

"I don't know whether to accept this testimonial or not," mused the hair restorer man.

"What's the matter with it?" demanded the advertising manager.

"Well," explained the boss, "the man writes: 'I used to have three bald spots on the top of my head, but since using one bottle of your hair restorer I have only one.'"
—Stray Stories.

If all our misfortunes were laid in one common heap, whence everyone must take an equal portion, most people would be content to take their own and depart.

Success lies, not in achieving what you aim at, but in aiming at what you ought to achieve and pressing forward.—A. F. Horton.

Student Chatter

Jones—Mac seems to be very enthusiastic about the Marine Corps Institute.
Bones—You said it.

Jones—But, when does he find time to study? He's always coming in long after Taps.

Bones—That's all right. He's studying to be a night watchman.

Old-timer says: "Darn the luck. All I got for Christmas was three post cards, a photograph of my mother-in-law and a dose of indigestion."

There is no more pathetic picture than that of a Russian Soviet leader telling a group of half-starved peasants the wonderful benefits of Bolshevism.

The Soft Answer

Top Kick—Lookit here, Martin. You only joined this company yesterday, and here you are late for Reveille right off the reel. You'd better snap out of it!

Martin—Well, Sergeant, it's this way.
I sat up late last night writin' home to the folks and tellin' them that this was the first company I'd struck yet that had a regular, A-No 1. Top Sergeant in it.
Naturally, I was a little bit sleepy this morning.

Top Kick—All right, Martin, but please endeavor to be a little more prompt in the future.

Advance Bookings

Levy—Let me congratulate you on your fire, Mr. Goldstein.

Goldstein—That ain't my fire. That's Blumstein's. Mine's next Thursday.

Questions and Answers

Question: Is it proper for a Marine to give a young lady a diamond ring when he has only known her for three weeks?

Answer: Yes, if he has the price.

Question: If you had to put a bridle on a mule, how would you go about it?

Answer: Take the most direct route to the mule's head.

Question: Do you think it wise for a Marine to contemplate matrimony?

Answer: Yes. But be sure and not let it go any further.

Question: I've just loaned my bunkie five dollars. Do you think he's good for it?

Answer: You'll find out next pay day.

Tiny Army is Withdrawn

The amicable relations between the United States and Canada have been the boast of both countries for years, and the sincerity of the boast is more than ever true since the withdrawal of the Canadian

Army of Occupation from Navy Island, according to a recent dispatch from Buffalo.

Canada owns Navy Island, a small 30-acre spot just above the Niagara Falls.
The island was leased to an American firm on condition that the lease could be broken at any time the Canadian Government wished to use the island for military purposes.

Desiring to break the lease, which had been in force for about twenty-five years, the Canadian Government gave notice that the island would be occupied by an army. The tenant, an American farmer, left the island forthwith.

The other day the Canadian Army of Occupation on Navy Island was sent back to winter quarters at Toronto. The "army" was comprised of one corporal, who acted as commandant, and one buck private.

Not all the good jobs are taken. It may look that way now but when you will be ready for you.—The Marathon Runner.

SECRETARY OF NAVY SENDS GREETINGS

Secretary of the Navy, the Honorable Edwin Denby, gives the greetings of the season to the officers and men of the Navy and Marine Corps in the following message:

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to the officers and men of the Navy and Marine Corps.

To those who have served with us and are now, through operation of law, about to leave, I take this opportunity to say farewell and to express appreciation of your faithful service and work well done.

To all officers and men I say again I have complete confidence that you will ever keep the Navy an organization in which we may take a just pride and which will command the respect of our fellow countrymen.

Carry on.

(Signed) EDWIN DENBY.

AUTOMOBILE STUDENTS HAVE CHOSEN WISELY

Horace Greeley has been frequently quoted for his famous words of advice: "Go west, young man, go west!" If that great man were alive today, he would probably add an amendment to his admonition somewhat as follows: "If you don't go west, try your luck in the automobile industry."

The large numbers of M. C. I. students enrolled for the Complete Automobile Course point to the popularity of the automobile business. The astonishing strides made by this comparatively new method of locomotion have created an epoch in American industry.

Today the automobile is a vital factor in the business world. Highways are built with a view to accommodating the heavy traffic created by this type of vehicle. Little by little much of the transportation business has fallen away from the railroads, and merchants are beginning to heed the slogan, "Ship by truck." Thousands of workers have been recruited from other lines to take care of the various branches of this industry.

From the year 1913 to 1919 the number of automobiles in use in the United States increased from 1,009,513 to the astonishing total of 5,945,442. The number in use today is estimated at approximately 8,000,000, or about one for every thirteen or fourteen persons in the country. These figures show the remarkable strides made in the industry.

Henry Ford says that seventeen years ago he tramped the streets trying to get some storekeeper to give him credit for a chicken for his Thanksgiving dinner. Last year he paid the Government $76,000,000 in taxes.

The case of Henry Ford, so far as the automobile business is concerned, is of course without precedent. But it offers a good illustration of what has been accomplished by one man who had faith in what was looked upon as a mere innovation twenty years ago. The writer of this editorial can readily remember when the sight of an automobile on the street would attract a crowd.

Marines who have selected the automobile as a vocational study have chosen wisely, for by all the signs and portents of modern business, there is apparently no limit to the progress of this industry for many years to come.

WISE USE OF THE DOLLAR

By the Honorable John Barton Payne, Chairman, American Red Cross.

Man is so constituted that he has a recurring series of wants. For instance, however much food he may have on hand, he can not eat enough in one day to satisfy his hunger even for a week. So with our income, it must be constant and continuous, and the individual or nation that consumes daily or yearly all it produces can never make progress; like the squirrel, we must lay something by. "Where there is no vision the people perish." Vision means Thrift.

Money means the ability to meet our needs. In this we have first, the pay envelope, i. e., the daily income; next, the wise use of the dollars thus received, having in mind future as well as present needs, saving something for the day of need instead of spending everything for to-day. The foolish person thinks only of the present and makes no provision for disaster or future needs; the wise man thinks of the morrow, when sickness, unemployment, the education of children, old age or the like, will come upon him, and lays in a store for such needs. This is easy when the habit is formed.

The thrifty man saves regularly some share of his income, invests these savings in something certain and secure, even though the interest rate is low. If he tries the hazard of a high rate of interest or income, all may be lost. An honest business rarely justifies high rates of interest; speculation and hazard always go with high rates of interest.

Thrift soon becomes a habit, and becomes a real pleasure in itself. The Government can render the people no greater service than to lead them into habits of thrift by affording them opportunity to invest small sums safely, with a reasonable income.

Saving of money by workers has proved the salvation of thousands of families whose breadwinners have been thrown out of work because of the curtailment in productions and the world-wide depression that has prevented millions of willing hands from performing the duties which are imposed upon heads of families. Those who are employed to-day should take this lesson to heart and invest a certain part of their income in Treasury Savings Certificates, or start a Postal Savings account.

Housewives should remember that the personal budget is an enemy of waste and extravagance. It teaches one to live within his means and drives away life's most hopeless bugaboo, debt. If every home were operated according to a budget, we would have less waste, less worry, and less real suffering and distress. In school days the budget may not mean much to the student, but the thrift habit formed will bring many blessings for the future.

NAVY DEPARTMENT GREET'S "ALL HANDS"

The following greeting was sent out to all ships and Naval Stations via telegraph and wireless by the Navy Department:

"Merry Xmas, Happy New Year. Department appreciates splendid loyalty and help of one and all during trying times of the last year. You are real public servants, for your primary interest has been, and I know will continue to be, the welfare of the United States.—ASTNAV."

ASKS VIEWS ON WEARING OF SWORD

The Major General Commandant in the following circular letter to all officers of the Marine Corps calls attention to several suggestions relative to the wearing of the sword with the Sam Browne belt.

The following suggestions relative to the wearing of the sword with the Sam Browne belt are published for the information of all concerned, and officers are directed to forward their views to the Major General Commandant not later than February 1, 1922, as to the most desirable method of wearing this article of equipment, having in view all occasions, both mounted and dismounted, when the sword is worn:

The sword may be dispensed with by order of the senior officer present. When worn, the sword shall be placed in the frog with the curve of the hilt to the front and the rings on the scabbard to the rear, the strap on the frog to pass through the upper ring on the scabbard before being fastened to the button on the front of the frog.

First: The belt shall be worn outside the dress, blue undress, and service coats and under the white dress and white undress coats and overcoat. With the white coat the shoulder strap will be omitted. To draw the sword when worn under the overcoat it will be necessary to unfasten the lower button of the overcoat, which will be re-fastened as soon as the sword is drawn, and unbuttoned again when it is returned to the scabbard. To draw and return the sword, the ferule of the scabbard must be inclined to the rear.

Second: When worn with the overcoat, the frog and sword shall be worn on the outside, the straps of the frog to be drawn through a horizontal slit made immediately under the flap of the pocket. It has been suggested that there are occasions when it might be well to have the sword seen, such as when worn by the Officer of the Day, and that wearing it outside the overcoat accomplishes this: although, to remove the overcoat, the sword and frog must be dispensed with first. All experiments should be made with the new overcoat.

The U. S. Public Health Service has felt it necessary to prevent the too optimistic and extravagant claims recently appearing in the newspapers in regard to the curative effects of chaulmoogra oil derivatives on leprosy. While the use of the oil and of its derivatives has resulted in a considerable number of apparent cures, it is as yet too soon to tell whether these will be permanent.

The ethyl esters of chaulmoogra oil, the use of which has largely supplanted the oil itself, constitute a most valuable agent in the treatment of leprosy. In treating young persons and those in the early stages of the disease, the improvement has been rapid and striking; in older persons and older cases it is less so. Of the cases paroled from the leprosy stations in the Hawaiian Islands so far about eight per cent have relapsed and returned for treatment. This was to be expected; and on the whole the results have been so favorable as to make treatment of the disease hopeful. But only time can tell.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. MARINE CORPS

Washington, Sept. 30, 1921.

From: The Major General Commandant.

To: All officers.

Subject: Use of rubber-stamp endorsements.

1. Rubber-stamp endorsements will hereafter be used by all forwarding offices, in lieu of routine typewritten endorsements, on requests for leave and furlough and for change of station, and on the retained copies thereof. Stamped endorsements will be dated and neatly placed chronologically; they will show whether approved or disapproved, and will bear the initials of forwarding officers. If disapproved, the reason therefor will be stated in a few words, e. g., "Shortage of personnel," "View of previous leave," etc. Should a long endorsement be required, it will be typewritten.

By order of the Major General Commandant.

H. C. HAINES.

Official:—

I. RANDOLPH,
2nd Lieut., 9th Inf., Assistant Adjutant.

The first thing needed in order to be thrifty is principle, says Dr. Frank Crane. You must make up your mind, he says, and stick to it.

Benjamin Franklin said: "He that loses 5 shillings not only loses that sum, but all the advantage that might be made by turning it dealing, which by the time that a young man becomes old will amount to a considerable sum of money." Safeguard your savings by depositing in Postal Savings or by investing in Treasury savings securities.
